Deacon's Corner

How committed are we when it comes to following the Lord? For many this may be something on occasion, say when today's Gospel is read in Church, every three years we think about. For others it could be something pondered when deciding your vocation and a call to religious life. But, for all of us, we are called in one way or another to ponder this question daily.

It is said that a journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step; and every day begins that same way. So, every day can be our greatest journey each time we step in the direction of following Christ.

In today's Gospel Jesus calls out the rich young man, who on the surface appears to be devoted to Jesus, "alive with Christ" if you will, until Jesus calls him to give up all he has and follow him. It is there where we are challenged daily and where our battle with how our lives have been shaped by the world meets or lives devoted to Christ. When we wake and ask ourselves "how committed am I to following Christ" we place ourselves in the Gospel at that very time.

So what is it that is keeping us from living out our lives fully? If we have been blessed with wealth or luxuries that others do not have, this is not a sin, but to not use them for the betterment of those around you, then they are holding us back from living out God's calling. Jesus is asking us to use the blessings we have received in the best way that we can to benefit all. In doing so, we are truly living lives devoted to Christ and can truly enjoy and thank God for our blessings.

May the peace of Christ be in you,
Deacon Mark

Thank you Lord Jesus, Come Holy Spirit
